DEADLYSCIENCE SUMMARY

DeadlyScience is a not-for-profit organisation that delivers STEM programs to remote and regional schools throughout Australia. With Indigenous communities as a primary focus, their mission is to create STEM equity for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander learners.

DeadlyScience's education programs include virtual classes, face to face sessions, immersion experiences and 'Deadly Labs', where their teams fly to remote locations and use traditional Indigenous science knowledge to co-create lab kits in collaboration with the local community, such as using dumbuyumbu (leaves) to make bush soap. They also deliver important resources including microscopes, telescopes, books, Lego and drones. To date DeadlyScience has visited close to 1000 schools.

THE CHALLENGE

Travelling to Indigenous communities in remote locations like the Torres Strait, Kimberley and Far North Queensland comes with its own unique set of challenges. Trips are detailed and complex, and usually involve multiple legs and all modes of transport, from airlines to small charter planes, hire cars, and even helicopters. The team travels with a lot of equipment, and itineraries are subject to frequent change. The DeadlyScience Founder and CEO also travels between capital cities to present keynote speeches and attend events. Prior to working with FCBT, DeadlyScience was handling all travel themselves.

THE SOLUTION

By working with FCBT, DeadlyScience was able to streamline their complex travel needs into one single hub. This has significantly improved the administration process, and saved their organisation substantial amounts of time and money. For example, changes to itineraries are now far simpler and less costly to make. Travel visibility has been improved, making it much easier to keep track of travel bookings and trips. FCBT is in regular contact with DeadlyScience, and with a single point of contact, communications have also become more streamlined.

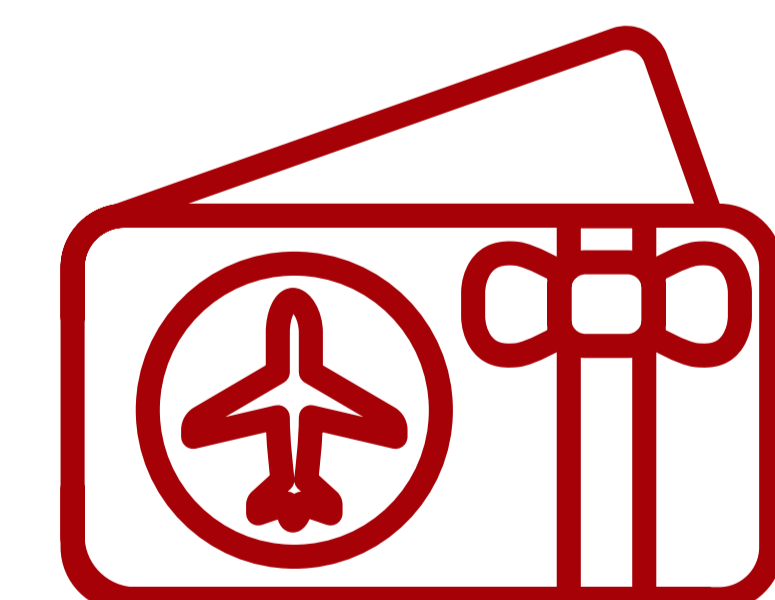

RELATIONSHIPS

“FCBT are simply lovely people to work with. They understand our rapidly growing organisation and are clearly aligned with our values”

TIME SAVING

“If anything goes wrong or changes on a trip, we have someone we can get in touch with straight away and we know they will sort it all out as quickly as possible”

TRAVEL REWARDS

“We chose FCBT because of the Flight Centre reputation; it's an organisation we trust, and we know they have access to the best deals and the best travel suppliers”
